All you get is huge photos of different parts of plants at different parts of the text, rather than one larger photo of the entire plant. I found this disjointed and unenjoyable to read. The part on actual flowers, for instance, is about 100 pages out of the 439 page book. I expected more emphasis on flowers and less on roots/bark/seeds.

The Flower Book by Edward Burne-Jones is a series of 38 round watercolours, each about six inches across, painted from 1882 to 1898. The paintings do not depict flowers; rather, they were inspired by the flowers' names. Burne-Jones called them "a series of illustrations to the Names of Flowers". "Not a single flower itself appears", according to his wife Georgiana. They were painted for his private pleasure, many while he was resting at his summer home in Rottingdean, and were described by his w
