

CONTENTS

	Page
Editorial	2
Papers
Lomonosov, the discovery of Venus's atmosphere, and the eighteenth-century transits of Venus Jay M. Pasachoff and William Sheehan	3
Romanian astronomy and the 1874 transit of Venus Magda Stavinschi	15
The M51 mystery: Lord Rosse, Robinson, South and the discovery of spiral structure in 1845 Wolfgang Steinicke	19
The development of astronomy in Naples: the tale of two large telescopes made by William Herschel Mauro Gargano	30
'Astronomy' or 'astrology': a brief history of an apparent confusion Alexandre Losev	42
Long-publishing astronomers, or the problem of classification Joseph S. Tenn	47
James Ferguson remembered Clive Davenhall	57
Some new insights into the history of the Glasgow time ball and time guns David Clarke and Roger Kinns	59
Obituary
Hilmar Willi Duerbeck, 1948-2012 Christiaan Sterken, Joseph S. Tenn and Wayne Orchiston	68
Book Reviews
Advancing Variable Star Astronomy. The Centennial History of the American Association of Variable Star Observers , by Thomas R. Williams and Michael Saladyga Wayne Orchiston	70
Celebrating the AAO: Past, Present and Future: Proceedings of a Symposium held in Coonabarabran June 21-25, 2010, to Commemorate 35 Years of the AAO and its Transition to the Australian Astronomical Observatory , edited by Russell Cannon and David Malin Stephen Marsden	71
Scientific Writing for Young Astronomers, Parts 1 and 2 , edited by Christiaan Sterken Hilmar W. Duerbeck	71